INVESTIGATION:

Upon receipt of this investigation the undersigned learned that on 12 November 2005, 20th District, Sergeant John WARD responded to a request for a supervisor at 51 [REDACTED] North Claremont. Upon arriving at that location WARD was met by complainant [REDACTED] who told WARD he lives [REDACTED] of the building located at 51 [REDACTED] North Claremont which he also owns and which the police illegally searched on 11 November 2005. According to [REDACTED] he arrived home on 11 November 2005, and was met by [REDACTED] [REDACTED] who said that the police had been there and they had forced open the rear doors to [REDACTED] apartment and searched it then left a copy of the search warrant with [REDACTED] told WARD that the warrant was "bogus" because he was not the target of the warrant and because the warrant location stated: Single Family Residence. Since [REDACTED] property is a two-story building that meant the officers searched the wrong location. WARD made notifications to Operations Command then initiated this complaint register number but for whatever reason, the initiation report was delayed and was not received as part of this investigation until 13 January 2006.

Upon receipt of this investigation the undersigned sent a certified letter to complainant [REDACTED], asking that he call in order to make an appointment to sign the sworn affidavit and give his statement regarding this complaint. [REDACTED] telephoned the Unit while the undersigned was on furlough and left her a voice message stating that he wanted to pursue the complaint and asked the undersigned call him at home to schedule his statement appointment. After returning from furlough the undersigned tried several times to contact [REDACTED] at his home and cellular telephone numbers to schedule his appointment to sign the affidavit and give a statement but each attempt met with negative results.

INVESTIGATION Continued:

On 10 January 2006 the undersigned spoke with [REDACTED] and explained the sworn affidavit and the statement process to him then asked if [REDACTED] would be willing to sign the affidavit and give a statement regarding his complainant and [REDACTED] said that he would. Since WARD'S initiation report was not readily available and the undersigned did not receive the initiation report until 13 January 2006 as the information was not made available The undersigned explained to [REDACTED] that she was having difficulty retrieving the warrant information from the department files and asked if [REDACTED] would mind faxing a copy of his search warrant copy to her. [REDACTED] suggested that instead of the undersigned trying to get a copy from him that maybe she should try talking to that guy from twenty, (20th District) "MORAN" who filed the report for [REDACTED] about the "bogus search warrant." [REDACTED] was then asked to provide the RD number from his report and he stated that he did not have it with him so the undersigned asked [REDACTED] to call her back with his report number.

[REDACTED] replied that he guessed he could do that but then he would just be doing the undersigned job for her and she should be doing her own job. The undersigned tried to explain that there was no mention anywhere, in the file, that [REDACTED] had filed a police report regarding the incident. [REDACTED] interrupted saying that he has seventeen employees working for him and all his information is on a computer that can be accessed at anytime and he knows the Chicago Police Department is on a computer system so he can't understand why this investigator isn't doing her job. He then suggested that she get her information by talking to the guy from the twentieth or the ones that screwed up the search warrant to begin with. Or better yet, he would make things simple for her by telling her the name that was on the "bogus search warrant." [REDACTED] claimed he could not recall the first name of the person on the warrant but he knew that the last name was [REDACTED]. But it really didn't matter as he does not, nor has ever known anyone with the last name of [REDACTED] nor has anyone with either name ever lived in his building. The undersigned told [REDACTED] that she would have to call him back later that day to schedule his appointment then she terminated the call.

The undersigned then queried the Alpha listing looking for a male officer assigned to the 20th District with the surname of "MORAN." The Alpha listing did not show any male officer's assigned to the 20th District under the surname of "MORAN" but it did list one female officer assigned with that surname. She also ran a Clear Data Warehouse query under a Service Calls Search to ascertain if there was a record of [REDACTED] request for service then queried the Chris and Clear systems as well in an attempt to locate any information relative to [REDACTED] report but each of these queries had negative results. The undersigned called [REDACTED] back to explain that she was unable to locate an officer MORAN or a call for service at his residence on 11 November 2005 and asked if he would please fax the report information to her. [REDACTED] agreed then said "don't you ever talk to anybody else on the police force"(in reference to his earlier comment) then he terminated the call. On 11 January 2006 [REDACTED] sent the requested facsimile transmission to the undersigned which consisted of a sheet of paper in [REDACTED] handwriting stating that [REDACTED] filed a complaint (did not file a police report) against the accused officers with Sergeant WARD (not officer MORAN) and that WARD had called [REDACTED] back with this C.R.#309607 number which meant that [REDACTED] never filed a police report filed and his report number (RD number) did not exist. (Att's., #1a, 2, 2a, 3 & 4)

Prior to receiving the facsimile transmission the undersigned queried the Clear system looking for a search warrant under the names' [REDACTED] using [REDACTED] address as the location as well as an E-Track system search and both queries had negative results. But the search through the E-Track system of an Inventory search query by the accused officer's name using [REDACTED] address revealed on 11 November 2005, the accused obtained a search warrant for a [REDACTED] at 51 [REDACTED] North Claremont, [REDACTED] address, which was executed at 1845 hours. The accused members did not locate [REDACTED] but did recover narcotics at that location which they inventoried under two separate inventory numbers.

Once the search warrant information had been located and obtained the undersigned ran a Criminal History with a photograph of [REDACTED] and after reviewing the facsimile transmission she called [REDACTED] and asked him to schedule his appointment to sign the affidavit and give a statement as all the relevant search warrant information had been located. Then she told [REDACTED] that the name [REDACTED] did not appear on the search warrant but the name [REDACTED] did. [REDACTED] did not say anything so after a few minutes of silence the undersigned asked [REDACTED] if he knew who [REDACTED] was. [REDACTED] said that [REDACTED] was a relative of one of [REDACTED] and that he [REDACTED] had obtained a restraining order against [REDACTED] to keep him away from his property. When the undersigned asked [REDACTED] if the restraining order was still in effect [REDACTED] became upset stating that he always works with the police, he is very active in his community and the undersigned should call the 20th District to find out how [REDACTED] works with the police. The undersigned told [REDACTED] that he was still required to sign the affidavit and give a statement and asked when he would like to meet with her to do so and [REDACTED] said that the undersigned should just schedule it and he would be there. This investigator told [REDACTED] that for his convenience she would adjust her duty hours then gave him five dates to choose from but [REDACTED] said he did not have anytime available on any of the five dates.

[REDACTED] finally chose 1000 hours on 24 January 2006 to meet with this investigator to sign the affidavit and give a statement. After [REDACTED] scheduled the appointment he was again given the undersigned duty hours and was to contact the undersigned if he was not able to keep the appointment or if he had to reschedule the appointment and [REDACTED] said that he understood and would definitely keep the appointment. On 24 January 2006 [REDACTED] failed to keep the appointment or to reschedule the appointment and that following weekend he left a voice message for the undersigned saying that he had a family emergency and asked that he be allowed to meet with the undersigned too sometime around 07 February 2006 and asked that the undersigned call his cellular telephone if that time was acceptable to her.

SUMMARY REPORT DIGEST

INVESTIGATION Continued:

On 09 February 2006 the undersigned was going to reschedule [REDACTED] appointment and tried to contact him via his cellular telephone and his home telephone but both numbers were not working so she finally telephoned [REDACTED] business to speak with him. [REDACTED] was angry that he was contacted at his business and said he did not want to talk to this investigator in front of his employees and would call her back. The undersigned tried to tell [REDACTED] that too much time had already elapsed and they needed to schedule an appointment now as she could not go forward with the investigation until [REDACTED] signed the affidavit and gave his statement and she suggested a date and time to meet. [REDACTED] said he could not make that date or time then stated "I said I would call you back, and you have to do what you have to do" and terminated the call without making an appointment. This investigator made one more attempt to have [REDACTED] sign the affidavit and give his statement but that attempt also met with negative results. (Attachment #'s 5, 6, & 7)

As this investigator was attempting to get the complainant to sign the sworn affidavit and give a statement it was discovered that [REDACTED] had been filed on behalf of the complainant regarding this alleged incident. A careful review of the civil suit found that it contained the same allegations as those listed under this complaint. Since this investigation was already under way rather than assign a new complaint register number to the civil suit the civil suit was incorporated under this investigation. (Attachment # 8)

Due to the complainant's failure to cooperate with the investigation the accused members were identified by not served nor notified of the charges/allegations made against them under this complaint register number.

Based on the fact that the complainant has failed to cooperate in this investigation, and that no sworn affidavit has been executed. It has been determined that the allegations in this case are completely false and not factual. Therefore, the following recommendations are being made.
